Japan Corporation Law Seminar

-Recent Legal Environments Surrounding Directors-

With the significant new changes in Japan’s legal landscape resulting from the new Company Law made effective as of May 2006, it is increasingly important to have a solid understanding of the duties and responsibilities of directors in Japan. This seminar covers the basic legal issues facing directors, including their legal duties and responsibilities, and then focuses on two major areas where dynamic change is underway: insider trading and M&A. There are a growing number of insider trading cases in which sanctions have been imposed against inside traders. Understanding such cases is a key to analyzing and developing a better “internal control system” within your company. Further, recent legal developments in M&A necessitate that directors bring a renewed focus to the process of a board’s decision-making in light of shareholders’ interest. This seminar will update you regarding the latest duties and responsibilities of directors in Japan and provide you with successful strategies to meet the new challenges facing today’s directors.
